measuring 19 inches in circumference and weighing 5½ lbs. are to be the size of the 16-acre patch of the Christmas Island Forest. It is estimated that this patch will yield at least 100 tons of timber, valued at a conservative estimate of $10 per ton, an acre of the above type would produce 100 tons of timber, raising an acre of beets is estimated at $60, which would leave the grower a profit of $280 an acre. How would you like to see the growth of next year's bank account if the factory is built here? And it will come provided that the State will act. For the love of Mike keep the weeds out of that summerfallow intended for the growing of beets.

The first all-British direct cable service between Montreal and London was opened on August 18th by the Canadian Pacific Telegraphs.

As business warrants, this service will be extended to embrace other Canadian cities with which it is now connected but which, as yet, cannot offer a reasonable return for a regular service. Messages were exchanged between the London Chamber of Commerce and the Montreal Board of Trade and between the Canadian and the English headquarters of the Bank of Montreal, the clearing of the accounts of mutual goodwill and prophecying closer relations as a result of the improved cable facilities.

ment, which have been such a source of misery, and a drain on the resources of the Empire, to an important number.

In this happy result the Dominions must share. This is an Empire Exhibition, and the Empire Exhibition is the biggest advertising contract the world has ever known. The British Empire says: "See all our windows," and the world says: "We will see all the earth, combining business with pleasure, are looking in, seeing for themselves what the British Empire grows, what it manufactures, and because the British Empire grows so many British goods, millions of dollars worth of orders are being booked between the different branches of the family." This is the biggest advertising campaign in the world.

BUY AT HOME OR WITHIN THE EMPIRE THE REMEDY

Canada spent over five hundred million dollars in the United States last year.

Think of it. At that amount could be spent in Canada instead of in the United States the coming year we would be the most prosperous country on the face of the earth.

In an interview in London, after returning from Scandinavia, Mr. E. V. Beatty put forward an excellent argument in favor of imperial preference or any other plan which will serve to increase trade between Canada and the Mother Country. Owing to the fact that sterling is not at par, Canada, he said, was shut out from the greatest financial market of the world, and British investors who would like to take advantage of opportunities in Canada were handicapped.

The difficulty is that Canada sells to Great Britain, every year, many million dollars worth of goods more than she imports. At the same time, she buys from the United States many millions worth of goods more than she exports to that country. The settlement has to be made through New York on the basis of New York exchange and both Canada and the Motherland are losers by it.

If the trade could be opened up in some way a fair path would be created over which capital could roll into Canada, and with the capital, no doubt, would come immigration of an excellent type.

RED DEER AS AN IMMIGRANT CENTRE

The arrival a short while ago of yet another body of immigrants at Red Deer marks another stage in the definite establishment of this district as a reception and distribution centre for immigrants. It seems certain now that we are at the beginning of another period of immigration from Great Britain and Europe on a very large scale. That being so, it is of no little importance to this city and district that it should get and keep the position of a terminus for immigration traffic. Every trainload of immigrants brought to the government training centre here means at least a little more money spent in the city, at least some addition to the shop's labor available for different purposes in the district, probably a few more families who establish themselves permanently in the district. Moreover, all these people write home to their relatives and friends, and they are reasonably well pleased with the prospects here, they tend to attract others to follow their lead. So far, we believe that the bringing of them here has been a real success. They seem to have got work quickly, and on terms satisfactory to themselves and to those by whom they are employed. There has not been reason to suspect that they have been exploited or taken unfair advantage of. They have been well advised and well looked after, and, so far as we have heard, only a very few of them have seen any reason to regret their coming to Western Canada.

If this good, beginning can be kept up, it will be a thoroughly good thing for Red Deer. As we have noted before, the spirit in which these newcomers have been received by our citizens has been a kindly and helpful one, and the first good impression thus created has a way of lasting. Now might well be a suitable time for considering whether under government or other auspices some suitable industries might not be established in the city or at the training centre to help still further in insuring the successful start of the newcomers. Right now something like, for instance, with the manufacture of woollen goods and fabrics, in which the Hebrideans at any rate are not without considerable knowledge and skill. Farming must remain our premier industry for the present, but it need not be our only one.

THE REPARATIONS SETTLEMENT

The conference in London of the nations interested in the question of German reparations has at length ended in a settlement of that apparently hopeless problem. A chorus of satisfaction and congratulation has greeted the result. In view of past disappointments it seems well to be cautious in believing that a real end has been made of European wrangling, and that a new era of peace and prosperity is about to open. It is earnestly to be hoped that it is so, but for the present let us keep about as much as can be said about it. Put very shortly, the settlement arranged provides for a stabilization of German currency with the aid of an international loan of approximately 200 million dollars (all the arrangements have been in pounds sterling). The security for the loan will be mainly the German state railways, which are to be put in charge of a specially constituted international authority. Germany is not to receive a complete moratorium but will pay for the next two years approximately 250 million dollars each year. In the following two years these payments will rise until they reach the figure of about 625 million dollars a year, which is fixed as the standard annual payment, though it is not rigidly fixed, as power is given to the Reparations Agent, to be appointed under the settlement, to reduce the annual payments in accordance with the prevailing standard of prosperity each year in Germany. The Ruhr area is to be evacuated by the French and Belgian troops not later than one year hence, and the economic unity of Germany is to be restored to her.

The supervision of the reparations payments is to be in the hands of a Reparations Agent in Berlin who will be an American citizen. In case of default by Germany this agent and a representative of the International Arbitration Court will report to the Reparations Commission established by the Versailles treaty as to whether or not the default is wilful, whereupon the Reparations Commission will consider what steps are necessary in view of the default. An American representative in such case will be added to the Reparations Commission with a vote in its decisions.

The Reparations Commission through one of its inter-allied organizations, along with separate bodies in each country, will keep watch over the very difficult question of how payments in kind by Germany are to be received by the Allied nations without disturbing the economic arrangements of such nations by creating unemployment or otherwise. Similarly, careful provision is made for giving the Reparations Agency in Berlin authority to regulate the payments in cash so as not to upset the international money exchanges, a problem so highly technical and difficult that it seems beyond the understanding of any but the greatest experts in finance, and even they do not seem able fully to control or explain its intricacies.

It will be noted that this settlement is merely a settlement of the matters dealt with in the Dawes Report. It does not deal with the vital questions of Germany's military power and the total of reparations payable by Germany. They were not within the scope of the Conference and presumably are to be governed by the Treaty of Versailles or by subsequent negotiations.

Inevitably the whole value of this settlement depends on the spirit in which it is carried out by all the nations concerned, but especially by Germany. If Germany intends to abandon the policy of fraud and treachery which she has followed so persistently since the war (not to mention before and during the war), then there seems to be hope for Europe of a new era of peace. The spirit prevailing at the Conference seems to have been a much more friendly one than on any occasion since the war. It may be that some at least of the German leaders have learnt the bitter lesson of defeat and are resolved to try to lead their country into better ways. The problem will then be whether they will be allowed to do so by the irreconcilable element in Germany, which thinks only of revenge and the old policy of force.

In the meantime the settlement has brought a great measure of prestige and credit to Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, the British Prime Minister, to whose efforts it is certainly for the most part due. It will depend on the enduring or the unreal character of the settlement whether such prestige and credit also endure.

TO BOB OR NOT TO BOB

The civilized world of today is full of doubts, confusions, tumults and strife. In that civilized world women are today in the majority, and for them there is one crucial question which overshadows all others—to bob or not to bob their hair.

It is a problem not to be decided lightly or hastily. Great issues hang upon the decision. Quite recently we read somewhere that "Hell knows no fury like a woman scorned—if the result is unbecoming." Moreover, the decision is not a simple one. There are not just two alternatives—that of wearing the hair long or cutting it short. The "cropping" may be reduced by bobbing proper or by shingling, or tunkhamening or straight, lank locks hanging on each side of the cheeks, which makes the wearer look like a combination of a seventeenth century sea pirate and a present day drowned rat. Few can wear it with the dignity and old world grace of a Diana of the Highlands.

There is indeed ground for believing that it was devised as a sort of counter irritant necessary in some cases to the physiognomy. There is the all-over-the-place-in-wild-confusion style, which resembles a dusting mop but is some the less by no means lacking in artistic effectiveness. There is the trim and curly style which in the case of open air games loving girls is both eminently sensible and distinguishable, becoming known to be seriously affected the issue of many a mixed golf or tennis match. The styles are many. The object is one. In these days of fierce competition in all spheres, no weapon of Cupid's airy armoury (do take care that you don't put an apostrophe before the adjective, Ralph, or you will simply ruin the graceful imagery of the phrase) can be neglected. The men of the world sit back and laugh in their brutal at fashion at the aesthetic perplexities in which the women are involved. "Thank goodness," they say, "we are above such vain trivialities. A periodical businesslike crop is all we think about."

The male memory is short and the male conceit is headless. The women are not so long gone when men took as much, if not more, trouble over their hair as the ladies. There were the days of the Cavaliers with their own, curled, scented, and ribonized locks. There were the days of great periwigs worn over the natural hair in a style which must have been stiffly hot and inconvenient to a degree. There were the days of peruke and powder. It was not only on ceremonial occasions that these artificial fashions were adhered to. Even the soldiers of the time following them in the field of war. That romantic and splendid soldier, Charles XII. of Sweden, was noted among the generals of his day not only for his military genius but for the fact that he wore no wig and used no powder or ornaments when in the field. The very rank and file of the British army right up to the early days of the Peninsula Campaign, little more than two years ago, were compelled to wear their hair in a sort of "clab" or semipitiful so stiffened with pipe-clay and grease that the unhappy men could not even turn their heads freely, and in that garb they had to fight their battles.

We have travelled far from those days. Imagination staggers at the thought of our leading citizens of today tying their lovelocks with suitably bright-hued ribbons before setting out for the Rotary Club's weekly luncheon or other function, though we freely admit that some of them would look simply too sweet for anything in a setting of pink and mauve.

We may joke over this bobbing question, but none the less it is essentially serious, and it ought to and probably will become more or less of a permanency. Long elaborate coiffures for ladies are likely to become as rare as the long male beards which at one time made the daily consumption of thick soap so difficult for the ladies. The trailing skirt, so fair belongs to the dark ages, the times of tears and languishings, of carefully planned faints into carefully selected arms, of screaming ascents of chairs upon the appearance of a mouse. The daring innovation of today is the commonplace of tomorrow. The accepted restriction of today may seem in the eyes of the rising generation like a grotesque and antiquated extravagance.

LIVE STOCK AND DAIRY POOLS

The example of the Alberta Wheat Pool is being followed by the organization of live stock and dairy produce pools for this province. Provided that the right men are put at the head of affairs, this should be an excellent thing for the farmers. It is merely one more step in the direction of the long delayed organization of the marketing side of farming. No doubt the scheme will encounter plenty of difficulties and opposition, just as other pools have. There will be many whose interests run contrary to those of the stock and dairy farmers, and they will do their best to prevent the success of the new pools. That is only in accordance with the business side of human nature. There will be internal friction to overcome, and the innate conservatism and suspicion of the farmers. In this instance there will probably be no brilliant stranger like Mr. Sappiro to tour the country and galvanize the farmers into enthusiastic support. There will, however, be the advantage of a gradually increasing volume of opinion among the farmers that co-operation by means of such pools is simply common sense, and that by hook or by crook they have got to make the pools a success, if they are to have any chance of real prosperity.

It is not only in Western Canada that the idea of co-operative marketing is spreading. In Great Britain it is being taken up with great earnestness. At the Empire Exhibition at Wembley an Empire Conference was held in July last under the presidency of Mr. Buxton, the British Minister of Agriculture, to consider the whole question of agricultural co-operation. Mr. Dunning, the Premier of Saskatchewan, was one of those who spoke at the Conference. It was he who moved a resolution to the effect that successful agriculture is essential to the well-being of the State, and that for successful agriculture it is necessary to have (1) scientific study and advice available for farmers, through the help of the State; (2) the voluntary co-operation of farmers in schemes of marketing; (3) the increase of social amenities and amenities for those engaged in farming so as to counter the attractions of city life.

Amongst the facts pointed out at the Conference was that in Great Britain agricultural co-operation is not only comparatively in its infancy, but it has to face an exceedingly highly organized system of marketing by traders who are not farmers and who naturally wish to keep their grip on the business of dealing in farm products. Western Canada does not present quite such difficulties. In a newer and less settled community there is more chance for the farmers to establish themselves firmly as salesmen as well as producers. It is interesting to note that the British Minister laid it down that the awakened enthusiasm for the study of co-operative marketing is really only the completion of the agricultural industry, which hitherto has been a one-sided affair. It has achieved much in the direction of improved production but has done little or nothing on the side of improved marketing. The agricultural college of the future will almost certainly lay emphasis on the latter phase of agriculture as well as on the former. The farmer will—no must, if he is to prosper—become as acute a man of business as the city dweller. The result of such a development may quite possibly produce a considerable effect on the whole system of retail selling of food products to the consumer. It is obvious that at present there is a condition of something not much better than economic chaos, which can certainly be much improved without any necessity for resort to elaborate and irritating schemes of compulsory socialism. In the meantime it is clear that our farmers are showing themselves alive to the tendencies and developments of the times, and it is to be hoped that all due success will attend the inauguration of these new co-operative ventures.

SKATING AND HOCKEY RINK
Lethbridge Herald: Medicine Hat is staging a community drive for a skating and hockey arena. They want one like Lethbridge boasts. Lethbridge built a $23,000 arena by community co-operation. The result has been that Lethbridge has forged ahead in winter sports ever since. Winter finds our young people with something helpful to do to amuse themselves. The rink is one of the finest investments the people of Lethbridge ever made. After all a city is measured by the provision it makes for its people in the way of conveniences for safe, healthful living. Recreation is quite as necessary in these days as many things we look upon as necessities.

EDITORIAL NOTES

If a rink is to be built, it must soon be started. Everyone who is in favor of the project, and willing to take one or more $10 shares in a joint stock company, should inform the canvassing committee at once. "There is no man in the province of Alberta with any better qualifications for the leadership of the Provincial Liberal party than Charles R. Mitchell, member for Bow Valley," says Leonard D. Nesbitt, editor and publisher of the Bassano Mail. Leonard ought to know.

Not enough publicity has been given the School Fair which is being held this Friday at the exhibition grounds. In its way it is just about as important as the annual exhibition. At the Fair held last year there were some really good exhibits, and it will well repay a visit by any citizens who can get down.

Many newspapers have spoken of the Liberal victories in the by-elections as notable triumphs. As a matter of fact, both the constituencies were strongly liberal before the election, and in this case the Liberal majorities were much reduced. At the same time the result in the St. Antoine must be a great disappointment to the protectionists, as the question of tariff was made the main issue if one might except the 1917 conscription bill.

Ready-to-Wear

DRESSES

Dresses this season still retain the straight lines but are not so severe, having embroidery or drapes, something to relieve the extreme simplicity.

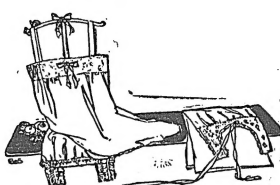

Afternoon or evening gowns of Ninon and Georgette, direct from France, exquisitely embroidered in delicate tracery of diamante. With every movement the light flashes and twinkles along the lines in a radiance, the beauty of which must be seen to be fully realized. Black, red, and shades of brown are the predominating colors, embroidered with small round silver beads, with beautiful designs on front and back. For parties and evening affairs these dresses are unequalled. Priced from $25.00 to $85.00.

COATS

The heavily ribbed fabrics lend richness and grace to the straight wrap around lines of these coats. A striking note of contrast is achieved by collars and cuffs of fur. Velours in plain style, or embroidered with fur collar and cuffs are always among the popular coats. As usual, we have some heavy coats made on the mannish style, preferred by many people. These are exceptionally good this year. The girls are not forgotten in our selection, polo and velour with fur collars, as well as the smart boyish coats, are there for approval.

Our range of coats this season is considered one of the best we have had. Come and choose your coat early.

NOTED BRITISH ECON-OMIST DEALS FREE TRADE A KNOCK-OUT BLOW

Canadian free-traders, and those generally who like the free trade policy, claim that the death knell of protection has been sounded in Canada, have received a very effective answer from Sir William Ashley, vice-president of the University of Birmingham, England, in an address delivered recently before the British Association for the Advancement of Science, at its recent convention in Toronto.

Sir William, having at one time been a member of the faculty in the department of Political Science of the University of Toronto, knows something of Canadian conditions.

Sir William laid it down as axiomatic that there should be adequate support for a policy of laissez-faire as applied to international trade, both before and after the Great War, has shown this to be true. The great industries of the German Empire, that made her such a mighty factor during the struggle, had been developed in defiance of the laissez-faire principle. Sir William also made the significant statement that "No great English economist," namely Adam Smith, nor Mark Ricardo, nor John Stuart Mill, was an out-and-out free trader as far as practical application was concerned. This was an important reminder for those in Canada who consider these economists as the final authorities in economies.

Sir William Ashley also made the following important statement:
"Factory laws, education laws, sanitary laws alike show that no modern, civilized state can afford to ignore the social interests can be left to the working of immediate self-interest." From this it follows that such an important matter as trade could not be so treated either.

The regulating hand of the state was needed just as much in these underdeveloped and continue to import many kinds of goods from countries not so well equipped by nature for their production. This is the same argument which we meet today as to the "infant industries" argument.

Professor Hausman appears to be of the opinion that the Protective system of the United States has justified the arguments of Hausman by developing the iron industry sooner and on a greater scale than it would have been developed under free trade.

Sir William cited data indicating that the amount of capital and labour sent to the United States for the production of certain goods has been caused foreign manufacturers to set up works within the United States.
Reference was made to the fact that the governments of Australia, and Ireland, as well as the United States, are framing tariff policies with this object in view.

The McKenna duties, recently passed in England, were a direct instrument in causing large European manufacturers of motor cars to set up factories in Great Britain.

That Sir William Ashley was correct, insofar as Canada is concerned, is evident from the fact that there are now over 700 branch plants of American concerns in this country.
They came over because they knew that only by this means could they escape the effects of the tariff. It was the National Policy that brought them across the line. He also held that cheap goods may not always work out to the best advantage of the individual or the nation as a whole. That is to say, it may sometimes be better for a nation in the long run to pay more for certain goods than to import them at a little lower price from other countries. Sir William also made the significant statement: "Economists nowadays have become convinced that economic life is not so simple as the early exponents of free trade believed it to be." It is not so simple either as the King Government thinks it to be, when it makes drastic changes in the tariff practically without consulting industry. The whole tenor of the speech of this eminent British economist shows that the political economists of the world by no means are ranged on the side of free trade as some would make the public think.
Experience has taught economists as it has taught countries, and as it is now teaching Canada.

Glen Gaetz, Thirteen Years, Is Knocked Unconscious, After Hand Sticks to Wire

(Calgary Herald)

Striking a live guy wire with his right hand as he walked underneath it while playing golf, Glen Gaetz, 13 years, suffered an electric shock on Thursday morning, and was picked up by his father, who was playing golf on the wire momentarily and then pitched a distance of 12 feet or more from the spot. He was picked up in an unconscious condition and rushed to his home, 1824 Fifteenth Street West, where he was attended by Dr.
McParlane. The boy regained his senses, but was suffering severely from nervous shock, and his hand was painfully burned.

Was Playing Golf

The young lad was playing golf with Howard Pratt, a young golf player, who lives at 1027 Nineteenth avenue west, when the accident occurred.
He was walking on ahead of his friend, who was preparing to drive his ball, and as he passed underneath the wire extending down to the ground from the side of the pole, he reached up and slapped it with his hand. Instantly he was swung off his feet, and fell back and forth, unable to let go, while his friend looked on from a short distance in astonishment. In a few seconds, the Gaetz boy, crumpled on the ground, some distance from the spot where he had been suspended.

Ran for Help

The Pratt lad did not attempt to touch his pal while he was on the wire, but he rushed away for help immediately, and the doctor was summoned when the Gaetz boy was carried to his home. The accident occurred opposite 1022 Frontenac avenue, and the lads were playing over the Earl Grey golf course property at the time.

Constable McDougall, of the city police, went to the scene to investigate the details and secure witnesses.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. M.

Gaetz, of 1824 Fifteenth Street West.

At 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon he was reported to be out of danger.

In connection with the above, Mr.

Gaetz wrote The News as follows:
"1824, 15th St. W., Calgary,

In connection with the above, Mr.

Gaetz wrote The News as follows:
"1824, 15th St. W., Calgary, September 1, 1924.

Editor, The News.

Dear Sir:

The enclosed clipping from the Calgary Herald tells of an accident that befell our eldest boy on Thursday of last week. It was not our intention to mention the circumstances to any of our friends and relatives at Red Deer until at some future date, then only in a casual way. Due to the fact, however, that the news has evidently gotten around, and some of our friends have shown their interest sympathy by calling us on the "long distance phone, we felt that it would be only courtesy to make a statement and dispel any fears that may be entertained on the boy's behalf.

The report as contained in the clipping is substantially correct. The guy wire running from the top of one telephone pole to within five feet of the ground on another pole became in some manner in contact with a charged wire, and when the boy, while waiting for his pal, placed his hand upon it he was instantly seized by the current because his body supplied the contact with the ground that was necessary to complete the circuit. He of course instantly lost consciousness and was held, bent and twisted by the current, then for some reason thrown some ten or twelve feet. His playmate in the instant ran to a nearby house and summoned Mr.

Edmund Taylor, who in turn called the police and doctor as well as the undergarment. The injured lad soon regained consciousness and has rapidly recovered. We have the doctor's assurance that there will be no ill effect from his experience, and that he owes his life to a remarkably good constitution, coupled with the fact that the current cast him off in time. It is supposed he was in contact with the wire for nearly a minute, during which time his hand was rather badly burnt as well as his foot that rested on the ground.

We are grateful for the many expressions of sympathy and concern we have received from our good friends.

Sincerely,

L. M. GAETZ

ROTARY CLUB CARNIVAL

ONE OF THE BIGGEST EVENTS OF THE YEAR

Ford Car to be Given Away---Carnival Will be Held Oct.
2, 3 and 4---Proceeds to be Used for Community Purposes

To raise funds for further community work, the members of the Red Deer Rotary Club are planning a Big Carnival for October 2, 3 and 4, to be held on the City Square and in the Ar-mouises.

The Rotary Clubs of Calgary, Lethbridge, Medicine Hat, North Battleford and other places have all held very successful carnivals, and Medicine Hat raised over $5,000 in their 1923 carnival, the most of which was spent in installing swimming pools in the city. The Medicine Hat Club also spent $1400 in helping a young lady in that city through a serious sickness, and she is now supporting her parents.

The Red Deer Club, after a good deal of consideration, came to the conclusion to try out the carnival idea here, and have appointed the following committees:

Finance—W. J. Botterill.
Assistant Manager—W. F. Keneloy.
Pianist—W. J. Botterill, chairman.
Purchasing and Storekeeper—W. E.
Lord, chairman; W. J. Stephenson and F. Turnbull.

Construction—P. Pederson, chairman; Geo. Norris and A. G. Bullock.

Dance—D. J. Gunn, chairman; G. H.
Lindsay.

Securing Suitable Location—A. T.
Stephenson, chairman; Dr. Sanders.

Stunts—H. J. Snell, chairman.

Advertising, Printing, Publicity—F.
Turnbull, chairman; J. A. Carwell.

Decorations—Geo. Fleming, chairman; R. G. Cornett.

Tickets, Prizes and Sale of Tickets—D. J. Gunn, chairman; G. H. Lindsay.

Equipment—F. Michener, chairman; B. Ainsworth and J. G. Fulton.

Fortune Telling—J. G. Fulton, chairman; R. Ainsworth.

The big feature of the Carnival will be the drawing for a brand-new Ford car, which has been purchased. With every purchase for an admission ticket, 25 cents, goes a coupon which entitles the holder to a chance to win the car.

Members of the Rotary Club, their wives and families will be excluded from this competition and will not be eligible to win the car. There will also be drawings for smaller prizes each evening. There will be a ten cent admission to the Carnival for those not holding tickets on the car, and with this admission ticket the holder has a chance on the night prizes, but not on the car. Ticket holders have to be present to win the prizes given each night but do not have to be present to win the car. The committee have further decided to give a $50 prize for the party selling the most tickets on the car.

The tickets are being issued immediately and can be had from Mr. D.
J. Gunn, chairman of the Ticket Committee, or any member of the Rotary Club.

The Carnival will be made up of all kinds of games, concessions, booths, and various stunts, and there should be a lot of fun and entertainment for all. Dances will also be held.

Last year the Rotary Club equipped the present playground at a cost of about $1000, and every dollar netted from the Carnival will go to some community work. The Club felt that with the support of the town and district they can put over this Carnival in fine style, give the people a good time and raise considerable funds for some worthy public enterprises.

It was reported as serious. The police investigation showed that the auto had skidded forty-nine feet before striking him and had travelled for twenty feet after the accident. Mr. Markle is 74 years old, and the serious injury will be hard with him. Mrs. Markle, too, had a stroke last year and is not in the best of health.

OUR THREE RULES

In conducting this lumber business, we have three rules.

First—the quality must always be there.

Second—the price must always be right.

Third—satisfaction must be a part of every sale.

By rigidly following these rules we have built up a patronage that swears that no other yard filled their orders for Lumber and Building Material as near perfect as we do.

Our customers' boosting is our best asset, and if you are not a patron of ours, we'd appreciate the opportunity of selling you once, and thereby make you a permanent one.

Watch Repairing

If your watch is a good one—or valuable one—or valuable for some sentimental association—you should be sure that the man who repairs it is a skilled workman.

A watch that's worth repairing at all is worth repairing well. We wouldn't do it otherwise—even if you were "not particular."

And it can be repaired here if it is repairable at all.
